“Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course
Lie all the verities and realities
of your existence:

The glory of action
The bliss of growth
The splendor of achievement

For yesterday is but a dream
And tomorrow is only a vision,
But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and tomorrow a vision of hope.

Look well, therefore, to this day!
Such is the salutation to the dawn.”

—The Sanskrit

RIVERSIDE

the glory of action

The surge of change at Lasell during the past two years has been enormous. I don't think anyone "intended" it to be that way, or consciously "willed" it to be so—it just happened, because the time had come. You who are seniors now were right in the middle of it. How exciting! Yes, but full of problems, too. Eric Hoffer once wrote: "Drastic change is the most difficult and dangerous experience man has undergone. We are discovering that broken habits can be more painful and crippling than broken bones."

I cannot thank you enough for having helped to make our change possible, and for having endured so cheerfully the problems that came with it. We still have a long way to go, of course. Many of our older buildings must be remodelled or replaced. Certain areas of the curriculum need to be modernized. We haven't learned as yet to find the balance-line between personal freedom and responsibility to others.

But we are moving, seeking, reaching. We are buoyed up in that deep stream of change which rushes so turbulently down the center of the American tradition. Together, in the midst of change, we are working for a stronger and brighter Lasell. I hope that in the years to come, when you are alumnae, you will still be working with us toward those goals. Again, my profound thanks for all you have already done.

VINCENT C. DE BAUN
President

In a way it is appropriate to celebrate Commencement at the end, rather than at the beginning, of the college adventure, for it serves to remind us that life does not begin each September of the academic year, or on January first, or when you are forty, or at any particular time in the near or distant future. Life is now.

If you agree with this premise, you will never again be deluded into thinking that the magic word is tomorrow. ("Tomorrow I will work harder." "Tomorrow I will be nicer to my friend." "Tomorrow I will be more honest.") This sort of procrastination, forgivable though it may be, will no longer have any place in your scheme of things. Never again will you be taken in by the fallacious reasoning which maintains that at some mysterious date on the calendar you can change the past and the self that is a part of it. You will live each moment with the enthusiasm that comes from realizing that it is TODAY that matters "... for it is life, the very life of life."

JUNE BABCOCK
Dean of Women

We are often told to live in the present, to make the most of the now. A character in Saul Bellow's novel, Seize the Day, does just that, but for negative reasons: "The past is no good. The future is full of anxieties. Only the real is present . . ." I don't agree with this; rather, I believe that we live in the present because our involvement in every bit of life is important, that it can become a contributory part to that sequence of time, past, present, and future. By living up to our potentials we become better individuals and fashion a better world. This is an affirmation, really, of the possibilities that lie within us for goodness. William Faulkner said this in his inimitable way:

I believe that man will not merely endure: he will prevail. He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul; a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance.

"There are from time to time mornings, both in summer and winter, when especially the world seems to begin anew, beyond which memory need not go, for not behind them is yesterday and our past life; when, as in the morning of a hoar frost there are visible the effects of a certain creative energy."

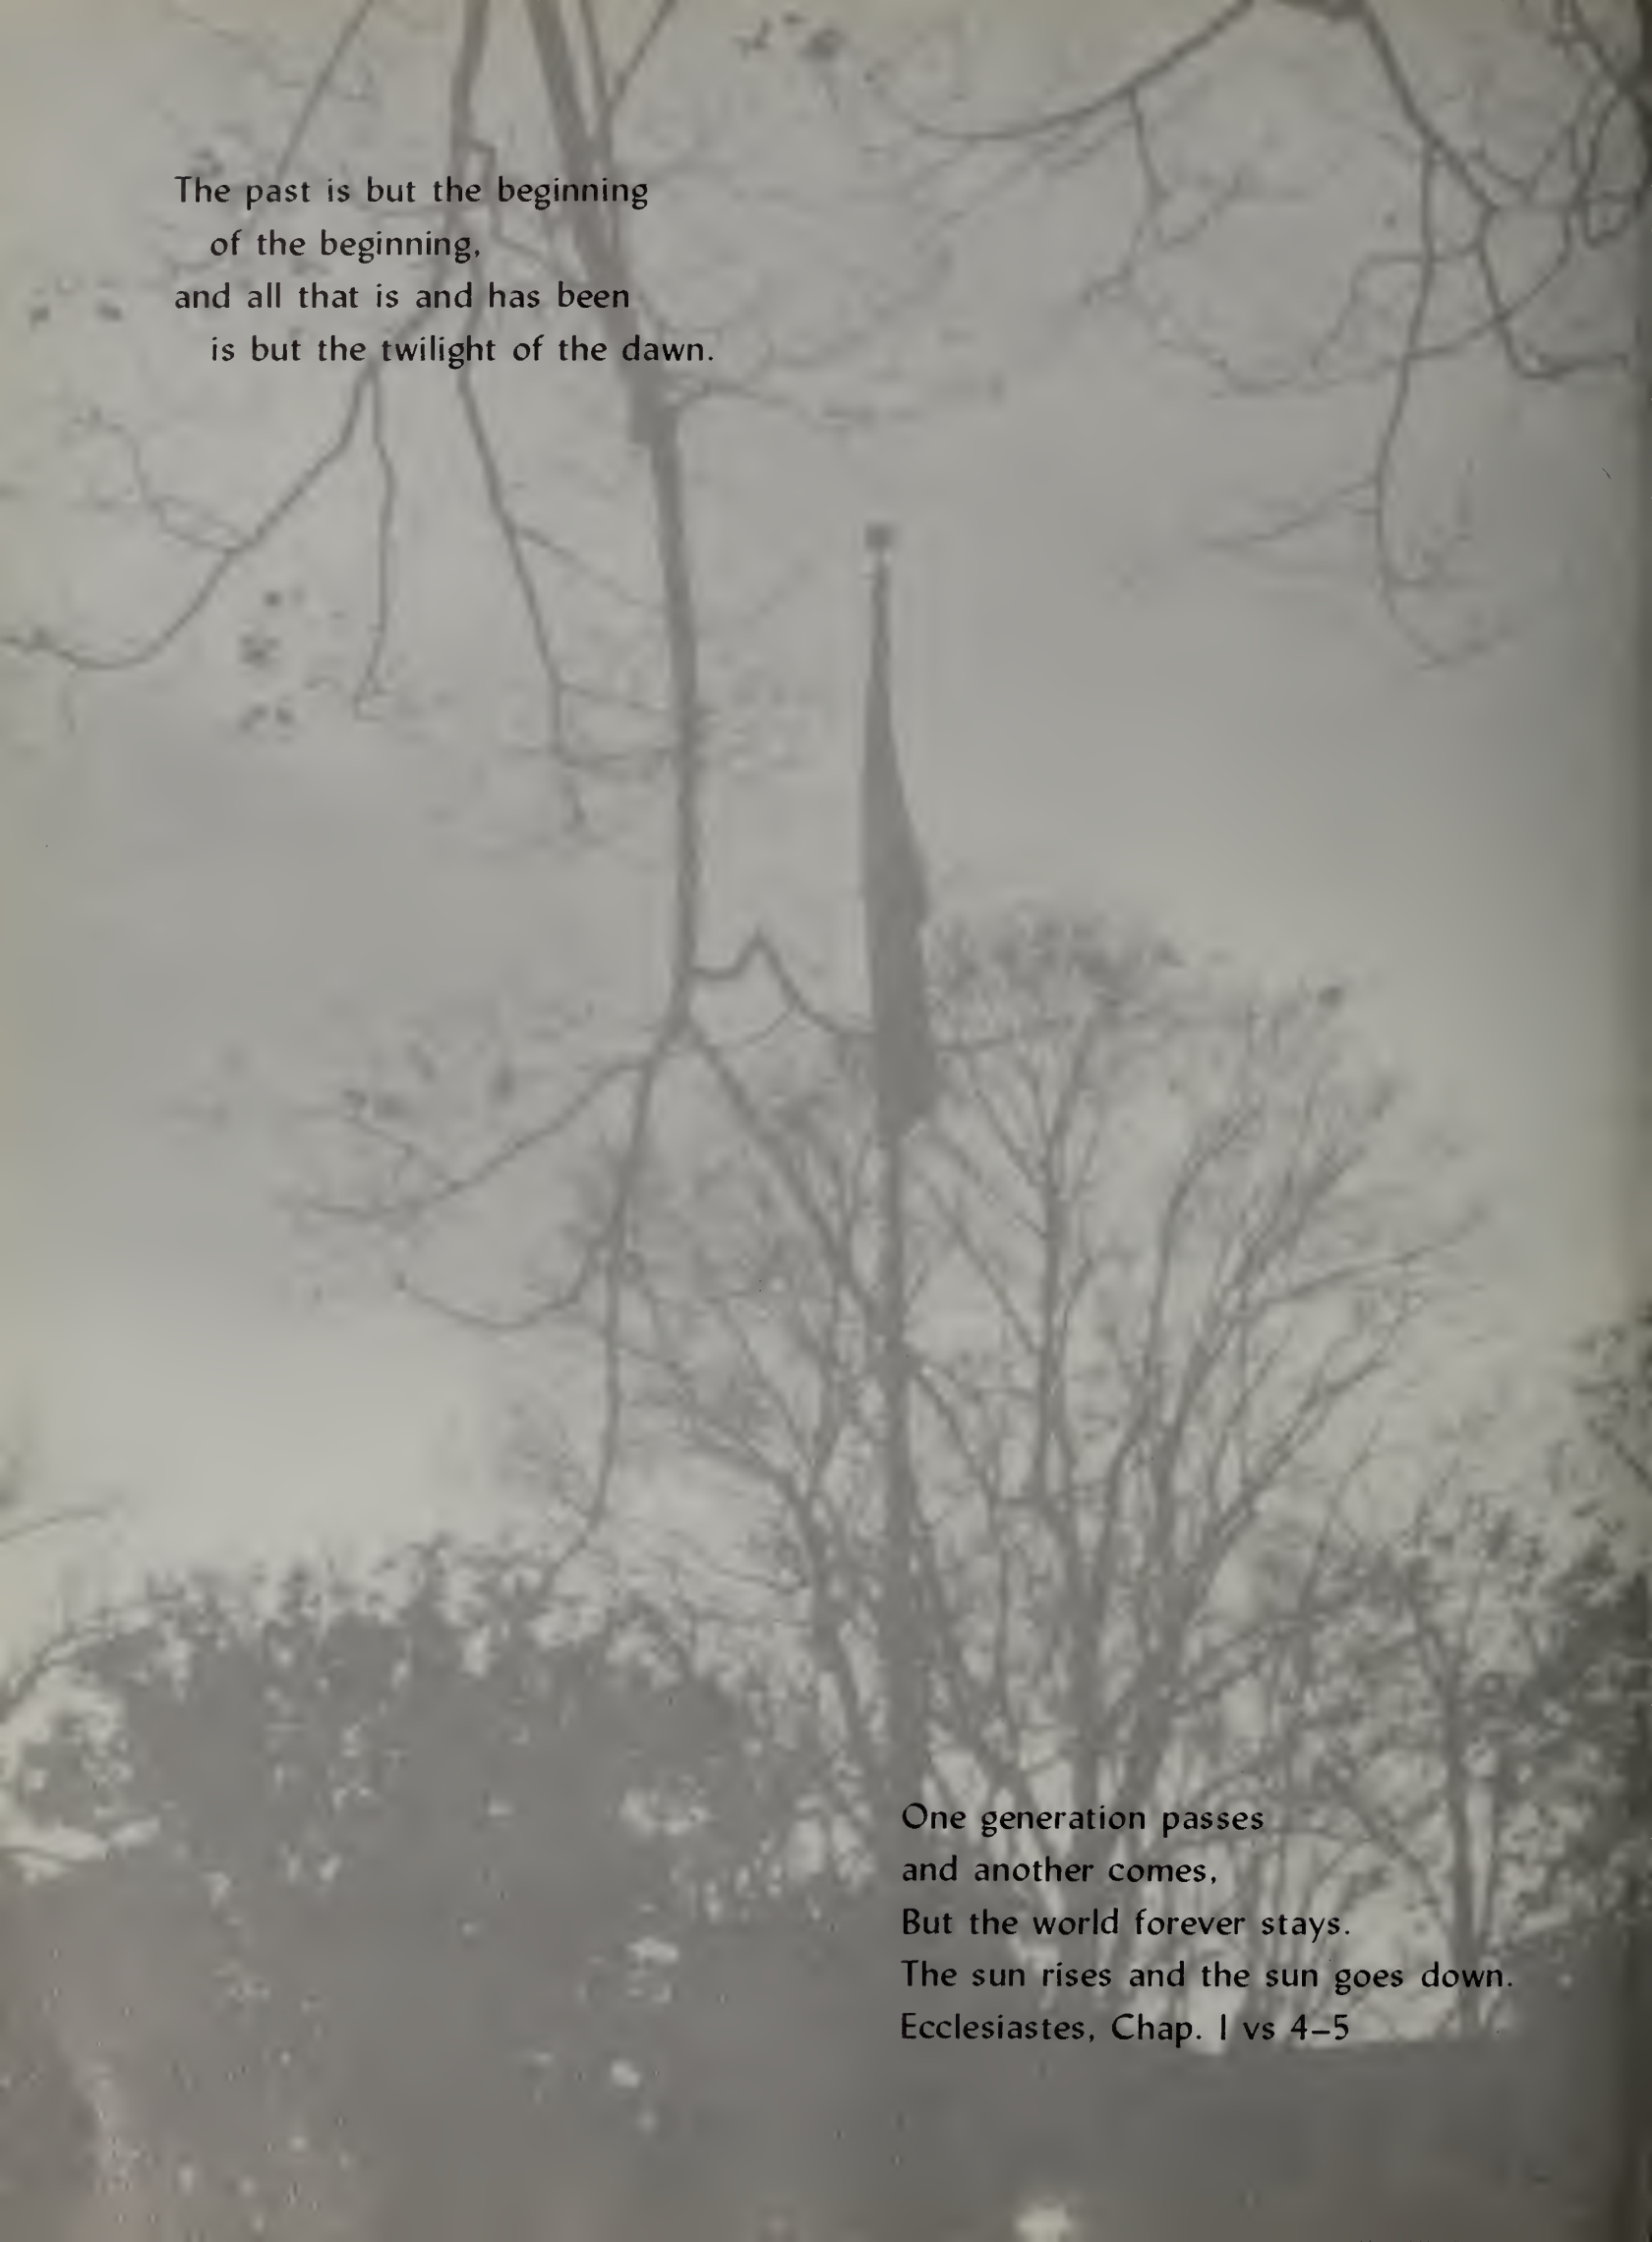

—Henry David Thoreau

A sepia-toned photograph of a church steeple seen through the bare branches of trees. The steeple is a dark, pointed structure with a small cross on top, rising from a cluster of trees. The branches of the trees are thin and intricate, creating a web-like pattern against the light sky. The overall tone is quiet and contemplative.

The past is but the beginning of the beginning,
and all that is and has been
is but the twilight of the dawn.

One generation passes
and another comes,
But the world forever stays.
